E-scooters in the Hands of an Angry God

HUSKIES!

There is great sin that expunges our campus, wallowing it with whiffs of brimstone and fire. It blurs across our street, crossing boundaries night and day in an unnatural affront to GOD. It tramples His faithful as He shepherds them across His avenues. It is of the utmost threat to the sanctity of our university-upon-a-hill. I refer not to conventional pitfalls of love and lust; nor pride and envy. I refer to a higher sin, which forsakes the heavenly gift of form. I refer to the e-scooter plague — as biblical in proportion as any swarm of frogs or locusts.

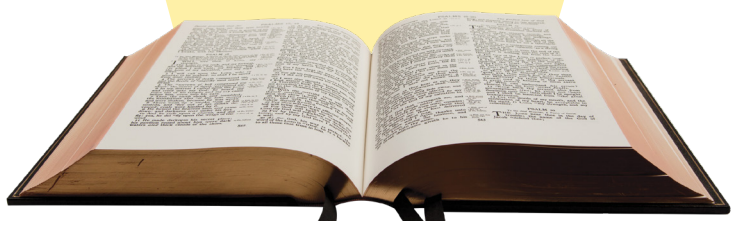

It is no secret that Man was made to mirror God. As said in Genesis, "So God created mankind in his own image, in the image of God he created them." It is, then, our holy duty to preserve this form: to embrace a false notion that we are to improve upon it is little else but divine transgression.

Despite this, those who depravedly drive on two wheels through campus shirk our holy gift of body: our own two legs! As said by Peter, "as each one has received a gift, minister it to one another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God."

Huskies! It is our duty to bring our brethren back into the fold. I speak plainly: it is our holy obligation to remove these sinnish devices from our campus. Look no elsewhere than Radenka 67:69: "and for those that cruise with wanton sin, thou must steal their lithium batteries."

Huskies! The redemption of your peers lies in little else than these contumelious machines' removal. Psalms 144:1 — "Praise be to the LORD my Rock, who trains my hands for war, my fingers for battle." Huskies, God calls for you to take up YOUR rocks: your blessed armaments of screwdrivers and plunge them into the belly of the Beast! Remove the still-beating hearts of their unholy batteries! There alone lies the purification of your campus, upon which we may each ascend in a more divine state.

And to those who seek such sinful conveyance upon e-scooters, I leave Galatians 5:12 — "As for those agitators, I wish they would go the whole way and emasculate themselves!"

USG should lead a revolution against UConn leadership

Friends, Connecticuters and UConn students, lend me your ears. I come bearing news of a revolution sweeping across campus. A storm is brewing in the Student Union. Now USG, famously a champion for the poor, the downtrodden and the common laborer, must accept the call to action that has been set forth. Radenka Maric's government has abused power for far too long. A coalition of undergraduates must step in and begin the inevitable class warfare. USG, then, is called to seize the means of production and deliver a victory for the proletariat.

I have outlined a simple three-step plan for USG to carry out their mission. These aspects will ensure that the revolution proceeds as planned.

There is one way that USG can step forth and begin the campaign – occupy Gampel Pavilion. Gampel represents UConn's foremost means of production. All the capitalist money is made there on the court. Therefore, USG should take over the building and hold it by having endless discussions about funding. The bourgeoisie opposition will not be able to break through this blockade. It should be noted, however, that USG should only take this step after they have reserved Gampel through official UConn channels.

Second, USG must form a Revolution Committee. This committee will be comprised of people who fundamentally disagree with each other – a perfect storm to start a rebellion. The members of the committee will, of course, carefully deliberate and come to no agreement as to how the revolution should be conducted. After all, that's how a good overthrow of government should work.

Next, USG should submit an official petition to UConn asking to rebel. It's only fair that we give UConn power over how we conduct a revolution – it is on their property, after all, and they have control over that. In the petition, there should be an official request to have amplified sound. Otherwise, how are we going to make noise?

Why USG, you may ask? Are they not a form of government themselves? Are they not members of the bourgeoisie? No. They are something different. They are the leaders of goodwill and the architects of capitalism's downfall. It is time for the pillars of Maric's government to collapse. It is time for the students to rise up. It is time for USG to lead the charge!
