

Autumn Fest: students celebrate the arrival of fall

By Carly Russell
Photo Editor

On Oct. 1, ProCon hosted Autumn Fest, where students gathered to enjoy a fall themed party. Apple cider, donuts and other snacks were provided as well as a variety of crafts such as mini pumpkin painting, ceramic painting and mason jar lamps. The event saw a large turnout.

Painted pumpkin by psychology major Grace Jordan, a senior.

Nursing major Sefora Orellana, left, business administration major Chrysannia Tibby, middle, and anthropology major Alayna Petroski, left, freshmen.

PHOTO: CARLY RUSSELL

Anthropology major Sania McReynolds, left, and business management major Arleny Abreu Quintero, right, freshmen.

Students in line, collecting their free drinks, snacks and art supplies.

Alumni and families gather for Homecoming

Cheerleaders cheering during the Homecoming football game.

This past weekend, the university welcomed alumni and families of students for family weekend. Saturday, Oct. 5 was the Homecoming football game and family day. The university held tons of events and activites throughout the day. Before the football game, families stopped by Moore Field House Lawn and Jess Dow Field to enjoy food trucks, carnival games and bouncy houses.

Assistant Director of Admissions Elisabeth Cerino, left, Bentley, middle, and Joey Gentile, right, class of 2018 alumni.

Marketing major Nasir Anderson, left, nursing major Liana Ash, middle right, and environmental systems and sustainability major Alyssa Longo, right, freshmen, and music therapy major Jay Wendt, a sophomore, midle left.

Students and families gathered playing carnival games.