STETSON: A SECOND CHANCE STORY

In Moultrie, Georgia, two college students witnessed five dogs attacking Stetson. Injured and frightened, he had puncture wounds covering his face and neck. They couldn't leave him behind, so they put him in their car and drove 14 hours to Connecticut to save him. Today, Stetson is a happy, playful boy who has come a long way! He has partial vision in his right eye from his injuries, but it doesn't slow him down. He's even made friends with sheep and chickens! Stetson is still building confidence with some dogs and needs a patient, loving home. NFSAW is offering a special reduced adoption fee to help this remarkable boy find his happily ever after.
